MAIL EMBEDDED IN CHILD'S BRAIN CAUSES DEATH

Infant of Virgil Myner Falls Upon Instrument Which

ITALIAN SUCCUMBS TO HEART ATTACK

Laborer Dies Suddenly While at Work—Organic
Trouble Fatal

Falling upon a nail which entered the nostril and penetrated the brain caused the death of Virgil Myner, aged about three years, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. David Myner, who reside on the Ford's Mill road, a few miles from this city.

The accident occurred at the home of the child's parents, about three o'clock Sunday afternoon. Death ensued a short time after the accident. Mrs. Myner had left the child in a room on the bed, giving it two or three thirty penny nails to play with while she was attending to some of her duties about the house. It is supposed the child attempted to get off the bed and fell upon one of the nails.

The mother was attracted by the cries of the baby and rushed to its assistance and found it upon the floor with the nail imbedded in its head. Medical attention was at once summoned and the sharp instrument was removed and everything possible was done to save its life, but without result, and it died a short time afterwards.

The mother was frantic with grief over the accident, which is one of the most shocking that has occurred in that neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Myner came to Bourbon county from Nicholas several years ago. The body of their infant son will be taken to that county for burial at Mt. Pleasant.

ITALIAN LABORER

Victim of Attack of Organic Heart Trouble.

John Lacaparra, aged 54 years, an Italian laborer, dropped dead yesterday evening about six o'clock, as the result of an attack of heart trouble. He had been ill a few days. Coroner Rudolph Davis, who was called to investigate the cause of his death found it was due to organic affection. Lacaparra has been her almost two months in the employ of D. A. Sant, foreman on the sewer construction work which is under contract by the Hurley Construction Company. He had been feeling badly for several days and was unable to be at his work until yesterday morning when he again resumed his position.

He continued at his labors all day and when the force of workmen quit for the day, he was engaged in gathering up his tools when he fell to the ground. Death ensued in three minutes.

It is said Lacaparra suffered a similar attack while he was working in South Bend and as a result was confined in a hospital in that city for several weeks. Dr. Brown, who had been attending him, was summoned, but before the physician arrived life was extinct. Coroner Davis was summoned to view the remains, which were ordered removed to the undertaking establishment of Mr. Geo. W. Davis, on Fifth street, where they were prepared for burial.

$39,390 PAID IN CASH FOR BOURBON COUNTY FARM.

W. H. Whaley, Jr., of Paris, purchased Friday from the heirs of the late Geo. C. Lockhart, the Morris farm of 263 acres at $150 per acre or a total of $39,390.

The place is known as one of the best and most productive pieces of farm land in this county, 250 acres of which is first-class tobacco land. The highest price realized at the Bourbon Tobacco Warehouse in Paris for a crop of tobacco this season was paid for a crop raised on this place by Plummer & McClure.

The improvements consist of an extensive well constructed colonial ten-room residence with other necessary improvements, all of which are in excellent repair, miles of practically new woven wire fencing, etc. The place is located at the intersection of the Brentsville and Clay and Kiser pikes and all is in bluegrass and small grain with the exception of eighty-five acres.

Mr. Whaley also bought all of the live stock on the place from McClure & Plummer, who have had the farm under rental.

The farm and live stock together cost Mr. Whaley a total of $42,000, all of which was paid in cash. Possession will be given March 1, 1914.

LEGISLATURE IS NOW ON THE LAST LAP OF SESSION

Today Marks Beginning of Final Half of the Allotted
Time

ONLY ONE BILL HAS PASSED BOTH HOUSES

Committee Recommends No
Impeachment for Judge
Sampson

FRANKFORT, KY., Feb. 9.—With to-day the 1914 session of the General Assembly is half over and to-morrow it begins on the last lap of the sixty-days' session. Although half concluded only one bill has been passed both branches of the Legislature and gone to the Governor, this being the Booles bill, practically a local measure having for its purpose the levying of a special tax for the rebuilding of Spencer county's courthouse, which was destroyed by fire about a year ago.

With so many bills on the orders of the day in both the House and Senate and ready for passage this should be one of the busiest weeks of the session, and unless something unforeseen occurs such as the smallpox situation becoming more acute, many measures should be finally acted upon in both branches before the week-end adjournment. However, it is generally agreed that in the event the smallpox situation becomes more tense or any more of the members become infected that it will be impossible to hold the rest in Frankfort and an adjournment of at least twenty days forced. Indeed, the sentiment is strong among the legislators that such an adjournment or recess should have been taken last week until all danger was passed.

The Special House Committee which has been considering the impeachment proceeding instituted against Circuit Judge Fleming D. Sampson, of the Thirty-fourth Judicial District, this afternoon on the convening of the House submitted its report, recommending that no articles of impeachment be brought against Judge Sampson. The report is voluminous and covers a review of the testimony and the law relating to impeachment.

The "probe" committees are still up to their ears investigating, and numerous meetings are scheduled for the coming week. The Hall special Senate investigating Committee, which has been delving into the affairs of various State departments and institutions, is expected to make reports this week covering its "probe" into several of the institutions it has gone into and there are rumors that its findings in some instances will prove mighty interesting reading.

AMERICANS DIE IN TUNNEL WRECK

Fifteen Victims of Revengeful Plans of Mexican Bandits

CUMBRE, CHIHUAHUA, Feb. 9.—Charred bones and several metal buttons and buckles from clothing were the only traces discovered yesterday of the bodies of the 50 or more passengers and crew of the train wrecked in the Cumbre tunnel of the Mexico and Northwestern Railway Wednesday. At least 15 Americans perished.

A rescue party, equipped with oxygen helmets to guard them against the effects of the smoke and fumes of the still-smouldering wreckage, made their way from the south portal of the tunnel over the wreckage of the burned freight train to the locomotive and forward cars of the passenger train.

Nothing remained of the cars but the metal frames and trucks, and it is believed that the bodies of the imprisoned American and Mexican passengers must have been destroyed by the intense heat.

The wreckage is buried under from five to ten feet of earth and rock from the caved-in walls and roof of the tunnel. It is possible that this covering of earth may have protected some of the bodies, but little hope is entertained for the recovery of any of them in view of the evidence of the intense heat developed by the fire fanned by the draft through the narrow bore.

It is expected by tomorrow the heat will have abated sufficiently to enable laborers to begin the work of clearing away the debris so that a thorough explanation may be made. The mass of wreck near the north portal is still

JUVENILE COURT OFFICERS PROBE DELINQUENCY CASE

Prominent Men Implicated in Affair Which Stirred
Queen City

PARISIAN ACCUSED ENTERS DENIAL

Two Confess to Charge of Contributing to Girl's Delinquency

A case which has attracted attention in Cincinnati, as well as in this city, was the trial of Mildred Crane, a sixteen-year-old girl, who was charged with being a delinquent, and who, it was stated in a Cincinnati paper, last Friday morning, gave out a statement in which it was alleged that a number of prominent men had contributed to her delinquency. Among the number mentioned were Brent Arnold, General Freight Agent of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, whose home is in Cincinnati, and George Alexander, president of the Alexander Banking Co., and a wealthy citizen of this city.

Probation officers in Cincinnati have been conducting a thorough investigation into the story of the girl, who, it is said, made visits to the establishment conducted by Lillian Boreas, a manicurist, in Cincinnati, where she was introduced to men, the names of whom were withheld by order of Judge Caldwell, presiding at the sessions of the Juvenile Court, but a Cincinnati newspaper secured the names alleged to have been imparted to the Court, which resulted in their publication.

The fact that a number of prominent men were involved caused quite a stir in the Queen City, and at the trial, held Friday afternoon before Judge Caldwell, the Crane girl was adjudged a delinquent and was held pending the prosecution of the Boreas woman. It was upon the testimony of George Richter, a chauffeur, with whom she had relations in January, that the girl was held by the Court as a delinquent.

Mr. Alexander was ill at his home on Pleasant street, where he has been confined for the past three weeks, when he received the information that his name had been linked with the proceedings in the Juvenile Court at Cincinnati. When seen Friday evening, he was able to sit up and gave out a statement in which he stoutly maintained his innocence of the alleged charges placed against him in the Cincinnati newspapers, and declared that the matter was ridiculous and absurd.

"It is very unfortunate that I should have been drawn into this affair," said Mr. Alexander, "but I am as innocent as a baby of the charges made by the girl, and the first intimation I had of being involved was when I was apprised of the newspaper article, and of my name being linked with the affair."

"Did you know Mildred Crane?" was asked.

"I never saw the girl in my life," he replied, "neither do I know the woman to whose home it is said she was taken. The accusation is infamous, slanderous, and absolutely without foundation. My last visit to Cincinnati was on New Year's Day. While there I was the guest of Brent Arnold. Since that time I have given my attention to my business, until three weeks ago, when I became ill. The motive, I think, is purely one for gain, otherwise it would have been impossible for them to have identified me with the disgraceful proceedings."

"I have been informed," said he, "that Mildred Crane is said to have letters and telegrams bearing my signature. If such letters and telegrams are in her possession they are forgeries, but I question the truth or such report."

Mr. Alexander did not seem perturbed over the affair, other than the embarrassment to which he had been subjected through having his name involved.

In the Juvenile Court, Saturday, Lillian Boreas was given a fine of $350 and a thirty days suspended sentence for contributing to the delinquency of the girl. George Richter, who figured in the case, plead guilty to the charge of contributing to her delinquency, was fined $5 and costs and sentenced to thirty days in the workhouse, which was suspended on application the assistant prosecutor. The cases of Elizabeth Bowen were continued until this week, when they will come up for a hearing before Judge Gorman, the newly appointed Judge of the Juvenile Court, instead of Judge Caldwell, whose term of office expired Saturday.

burning fiercely.

It was near this portal that the body of Juan Fernandez, rear brakeman and only survivor of the catastrophe, was found. He had struggled to within 200 feet of the entrance when he succumbed. He was found in a sitting posture with a handkerchief tied about his nose and mouth as a protection against the smoke and gas.
